

The honor of my race, family and self is at stake. Everyone is expecting me to do big things. I will.

Jack Trice (1923

Jack Trice, the first black athlete at ISU, suffered injuries during a football game with Minnesota in 1923. The injuries and subsequent neglect of medical care contributed to his death the following day. A note which was written the night before the only collegiate game of his life and found in his jacket after his death, became a part of a legacy. It states:

"The honor of my race, family and self is at stake. Everyone is expecting me to do big things. I will."

In 1984, ISU's football field was named Jack Trice Field in his honor. The $22,000 bronze statue was paid for entirely by students and was sculpted by Fairfield, Iowa, artist, Chris Bennett.

JACK TRICE

ISU Unveiling Ceremony Saturday, May 7, 1988

Immediately following VEISHEA Parade Between Carver & Beardshear

Master	of	Ceremonies				. Mike	Keller
				Past		Preside	ent GSB

Introductions . . . . . Julianne Marley
President GSB

Remarks . . . . . . . . . . . Marc Urquhart
National Achievement Scholar
Academic All-American

UNVEILING OF STATUE

Comments. . Chester Trice, Jr., Family Member Robert Fisher, Teammate

Speaker . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . Donald Kaul Syndicated Columnist

1988 Jack Trice Scholarship Recipients

Nina Fowler Kristy Johnson Brian Klocke